CREATING COUNTYWIDE VISION: SHAPE YOUR FUTURE

San Bernardino County

The Vision Project is a joint project of all 24 cities and towns in San Bernardino that will, through 15 community meetings, encourage residents and businesses to discuss the issues facing the county and create a consensus on developing a more sustainable County for the future. Information was gathered through reviewing the general plans of all of the cities and towns. After collaborating with local representatives and officials, plans and priorities were developed and more fully understood.

Starting in November 2010, the Vision Project launched two dozen roundtable discussions with experts in the economy, education, environment, public safety, tourism and community to examine what makes San Bernardino County a place where people prefer and are proud to live in. Following meetings with experts, 18 community meetings throughout the county took place, asking hundreds of residents to paint the picture of what they would like San Bernardino County to become in the next 20 years. These meetings were complemented by thousands of residents who completed online surveys, informing the County of their priorities and concerns for the future.

Vision statements were drafted and presented at SANBAG's annual general assembly meeting in June 2011.
